About the Show:

Buckaw! delves into the poignant comedy, science, and mythology of chickens through slapstick, mime, mask play, and music! Six characters, 3 human and 3 fowl, all played by Sarah Liane Foster, present an amazing and wacky series of chicken-themed acts. This 45-minute show is as engaging and ridiculous as it is educational. Audiences of all ages are drawn in as a chicken plays a ukulele, audience members themselves become bird scientists, a baby chick hatches out of a gigantic egg, and all culminates in a dramatic chase between a chicken and our zany ornithologist MC.

The show can be followed by a Q&A with the artist, and/or a movement theatre workshop.

About the Artist:

Sarah Liane Foster is a performer, teacher and creator of movement theatre, recently relocated to Seattle, WA. She has a passion for telling stories through theatre that directly engages audiences, uses movement as a fundamental language, and is funny and/or moving because it touches on essential human truth. Sarah has considerable experience devising and performing original theatre shows, having played in 10 countries and 31 US states to date, for audiences of all ages.

Audience Quotes:

"Amazing!"

"A delightful program."

"The kids and adults were all laughing!"

"A hilarious one-woman show. It will surely tickle your funny bone." (Janet Weber, Youth Services Librarian, Tigard Public Library.)
